The Republican State Central Committee meets at Columbus at two o'clock this afternoof to fix time and place for holding the State Convention of 1885. The 10:30 L. B. & W. express was boarded here by a large and able delegation of Springfield politicians and business men, who will use their persussive eloquence to induce the committee to locate the convention here this time, and as one of them remarked to a G.-R. reporter: We're going to bring the convention back with us, too." The delegation consisted of John W. Parsons, chairman, and Mayor Goodwin secretary of the Clark county Republican work of demolishing the two-story brick Central Committee, Hon. Ass. S. Bushnell, A. N. Summers, Esq., City Solicitor; J. H. Rabbitts, Esq., Wm. B. Baker, Judge Miller, Hon. E.G. Dial, Hon. Thos. J. Pringle, D. W. Sfroud, R. F. Hayward, Geo. H. Frey, O. F. Serviss, W. N. "Gimme a Lub Powdah!"

An aged and dilapidated looking negro shuffled into a down-town drug store the other day, says the Detroit Journal, leaned nervously against the soda-water fountain, and ejaculated in trembling tones the one word:

"What can I do for you?" inquired the druggist, politely.

The dilapidated negro glanced hurriedly about the store ss, I wants a fi-cents wuth ob lub

"Colonel, I wants dem powdahs fo' my ole 'ooman. She's done gone back on me an' I wants ter make her lub me again. Dat's so, Colonel—true's yo'

"Can't put up any love powders for less'n fifty cents," replied the druggist.

The dilapidated negro hesitated.
Slowly his hand descended into his trousers pocket and slowly it returned. Between the fingers was a bright halfdollar. The negro gazed upon the coin

"Gness it'll hab ter go," he sighed. Then he threw the coin upon the counter. The druggist picked it up.

"Tank yo', boss! tank yo', sah!" said the negro, as he shuffled off with the little package the druggist had giv-

"What was in that powder?" asked a spectator.

Magnesia and white sugar. Won't hurt the old woman," replied the clerk, carelessly.
"Have 'em often?"

"Have 'em often?"
"I should say so. Quite astonishing.

Nearly as old as ghosts, I reckon. In those old times it wasn't white sugar or magnesia they used. Oh, no! Those old alchemists used to have strong, powerful, and dangerous potions. They called them 'philters,' which means, 'I love.' course they didn't excite love. Sometimes they cause death, sometimes in-sanity, but the superstition has stayed right with us. I recollect one day a nicely dressed, intelligent-looking woman, who might have been a prosper-ous farmer's wife, dropped into my store and asked my assistant tor a love powder. The clerk laughed at her and said there was no such thing. Then she asked for me and was shown into the office. 'Mr. Dash,' said she, 'my husband seems to have lost all consideration for me. He stays away from home and drinks fearfully. He loved me once, and now I want you to give me something that will win back his re gard.' Of course, I told her I could do nothing, but she insisted. I know there are such things, she said. They may be expensive, but I must have one. Well, I retired and put up some harmless powders. These I gave her with directions to administer one each day in the husband's tea. 'You must be very kind,' I cautioned her. 'Make the house as pleasant as possible, and, above all things, never say a cross word. One cross word would spoil everything.' She offered me money, but I told her to wait till the medicine acted. About a month afterward my assistant came into the office.

"Your love woman's outside. Wants to see you, 'he laughed.

"Well, sir, 's soon as I set eyes on that woman's face I knew the husband had come out all right and such proved to be the case. Whether it was the white sugar or the wife's kindness that did it I needn't say. I suppose it's those occasional chances that keep the superstition alive. Chances will hap-

Dangers of Stair-Climbing.

The physicians of this city say that many complaints of sickness have their origin in hurried ascensions of the stairs to the elevated railroad stations. In the upper part of the Ninth avenue and Second avenue lines some of the station platforms are sixty above the street level, and the climb is a serious matter to delicate women and corpulent persons. One physician says that the large amount of stair-climbing at the elevated stations and in tall tenements has greatly increased the list of sufferers from diseases to which women are liable. Saleswor and operatives who are much on their feet are particularly liable to ill-effects from the excessive efforts of climbing to the stations in a hurry. Another physician says he has fre-Another physician says he has frequent occasion to warn business and professional men, especially those whose vocation is sedentary, of the danger of rushing up-stairs at the top of their speed when trying to catch a strain. A man may thus expend an amount of vitality so great as to interfere with his efficiency for the day, to say nothing of the special danger to individuals who have a tendency to heart troubles, apoplexy, and other diseases. He added:

The other day an experiment was made at the Forty-second street sta-tion. A man who weighed 150 pounds, tion. A man who weighed 150 pounds, ascending the stairs at an ordinary page, raised that weight 288 inches in 34 seconds. This required an expenditure of force equal to about one-fifth of a one-horse power engine. If he had gone up in half the time he would have put forth two-fifths of the energy of one-horse-power. I have no doubt that plenty of people go up that flight in 10 seconds. The rate at which the

OF ALL GRADES.

man climbed the stairs called for an expenditure of force equal to that ed in running at the rate of nearly 6 miles an hour. A man who should run up the stairs in 10 seconds could as easily spurt at the rate of 18 miles an hour. It is no wonder that delicate women and heavy men complain, and even strong persons pull over catching trains. In the excitement they do not know how much they overtax themselves until they sit in the car, or later when exhaustion or more serious results develop."

A professional athlete said yesterday that there is a knack in climbing stairs easily. To throw the body forward, bending at the hips, more than doubles the work. The weight of the a load that the muscles of the legs and oins must carry, and they can carry it easily if the center of gravity is kept directly above them. Bending forward imposes on the muscles of the trunk the unnecessary task of holding the load from pitching forward. This is like carrying a load at arm's-length, instead of on the shoulder, or on the head, as many Europeans carry burdens. Athletes lift enormous weights by bringing the strain on the pelvic arch and legs, keeping their backs straight. The gentleman gives this advice to stair-climbers: "Do not lean forward. Do not hurry. Do not spring from stair to stair. Step firmly, leisurely, and keep erect."—New York Sun.

The Greenville Banner tells the following pathetic story of how Conductor Frazier, of the International and Great Northern Railroad, tried to fight off death a few hours in order that might see his wife once more. He had been shot by a tramp, and had been taken to Tyler, Tex., in a dying con-

'Help me to fight back this cruel death, boys, until my wife gets here," said the dying man, cheerily. The doctors had already told him he could live but a few hours. With a calm courage he heard the verdict, and call-ed all of his wonderful force to his aid in the struggle to live until his wife arrived. "Tell me exciting stories," he said to the boys around his bed, "for I must make this run till she comes!"
And the boys did laugh and tell big stories, poor fellows, when their stout hearts were filled with regret. The hours sped rapidly by; the merry voice of the conductor grew fainter and fainter, but his courage never faltered. A telegram from his wife in answer to one sent her some hours before was brought into the room and read. She was coming on a special train, the road was cleared for her passage, and with light-ning speed her train was annihilating distance. What a race! A young woman in the full flush of love and new life, pitted against the king of terrors. The news nerved Frazier for a moment, and his efforts to keep up were renewed. A little later another telegram. "Old boy!" whispered a brakeman, "she will be here in an hour." Good God! But one short hour to wait—to live! "Turn me over, boys," he said. It was done. He whispered to an attendant: "Charley, I can not run on this schedule—goodby!" He was dead in an instant. Just thirty-one minutes later a beautiful young woman bent over the prostrate form, and, finding no life there, broke out in one of those wild wails which tell all too well that hope in life is
